

Teaching type	Credit hours(4)	Architectural Design(6) /Urban Design	course number
face-to-face	pre-requisite 703421
Taking advantage of urban design theories, the student studies and designs a group of new interconnected buildings or develops a group of existing buildings in harmony with the reality of the urban character of an urban environment of a special character. The course includes a field study, a user interview, and the conduct of physical, social, economic and cultural analytical studies of the place. In this course, the student learns the methods of survey, analysis and conclusion in the study of a specific area, and the design process sequences from exploring problems and verifying their extent, then studying the factors associated with them in order to propose alternatives for various aspects to crystallize a holistic design concept. The course includes one major project during the semester.			