

Teaching type	Credit hours(3)	Behaviour and Built Environment	course number
Blended	pre-requisite ...		703541
This course aims to define the environment as a human behavioral content, and it reviews the concepts of mental, spatial, emotional and social behavior, the concept of place unity and its relationship to behavior as a basis for designing the built environment. The concept of sensory and mental perception, meanings, symbols, privacy, spatial control, security, social interaction and its impact on the place is also explored, conducting field work, studies and surveys to deepen these ideas through application			